Passion & Vision: My passion is to assist individuals in removing roadblocks to the vital, full life Jesus speaks about in John 10:10. These roadblocks occur not only in individual lives, but also in family life and in other relationships. Whether the roadblock is depression, anxiety, spiritual difficulties, marital trouble, or one of the countless other predicaments in which we humans find ourselves, support and care from a compassionate, Christ-following therapist allows people to assess the roadblock, map out a plan to address it, and return to living life as God intends it to be.

Clinical Experience: Three years' experience at the Center for Christian Counseling, and over 25 years of various congregational and educational settings working with adults, children, university students, prisoners, disabled individuals, small groups, and international students.
